

Photosynthesis — Study Sheet

Plants convert light energy into chemical energy stored in glucose.

The reaction takes place mainly in the chloroplasts of leaf cells.

Inputs: carbon dioxide, water, and light.

Outputs: glucose and oxygen.

Questions

1. Where in the cell does photosynthesis happen?
2. Name the two products of the reaction.
3. Explain why leaves are usually green.